

John Clancey, 115 Woodside St., Trenton, retired from Police Dept., now employed as Special Officer at Mechanics Natl Bank, stated that Lowell Marshall, niece of Judge Marshall, was found dead on Pennington Road near Odd Fellows Home on outskirts of Trenton. He was detailed as investigator to determine cause. One day Chief Crossley, now deceased, brought Mrs. Easton into his office and told him that she claimed to have some information. Clancey says he questioned the woman and she told a story about having heard some people living in floor above her say certain things which led her to believe that they were involved in Miss Marshall's murder. He does not remember whether she voluntarily came to Chief Crossley's office or not or where he took a written statement from her.

Vincent P. Bradley of 50 Perdicaris Place, Trenton, said that Mrs. Easton was engaged in horse trading business and ran secondhand furniture store at 336 South Broad St. Had employed their firm as agents to sell the business for her. In addition to the furniture business she rented out furnished rooms over the store and catered to a low class of people. In fact, her place was no more or less than a "bed house." He knows that while running the furnished rooms she and Easton were arrested for being parties to a badger game. Her usual greeting on entering their office was: "How
